This meeting was completely dominated by the weather !

Captain Tracy drove in very well, low and straight, while the rain was light but persistent.

Quite soon the rain became heavier, the atmosphere became charged up and the thunder started to roll almost continually. The professional shop did not see any lightning so play continued. Pretty soon the exodus to the clubhouse started and a very convivial afternoon was spent under cover by most of the field. Eventually a lightning strike and an extremely loud clap of thunder immediately above the clubhouse galvanised the pro shop into action and the klaxon was blown to call everyone off the course. However our captain and her family group (husband James and dad (Jack Roberts), not hearing the klaxon, continued, but it was soon too much for James and he too sought sanctuary. This left only two to continue to the bitter end. The result sheet is therefore very short :-

As Captain's Day a month earlier was also a very wet day, we can only hope that we will enjoy better weather in future.
